a snapshot at sight.

Camp on the Top of Wind River Range, Wyo., via Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 6.—[Special.]—There are no settlers here worth, excepting the settlers of Time. The Presidential party successfully moved on from the noted hot springs this morning, continuing in Fremont's own wheels and enjoying themselves superb to the great delights of Wind River Range to the west. Straight from Gen. Sheridan's route of last year, taking a spot from there the mouth of the Stream to Burnt ground that was to accommodate. The camp, arranged as before, is on the mountain side to the south on the top of the Wind River Mountains and west of Union Pass.

The view of the surrounding scene was magnificent. Close within to the southward rise Triangle Peak, 11,700 feet high, and Mt. Lander, 11,700 feet high, named after the well-known geologist and topographical engineer, Dr. Lander, of Philadelphia. To the northward the snowy peaks of the Grand Tetons, the Most Sharp of Americas, towered on, the highest rising to an elevation of 13,000 feet.

SLEEPING.

This is the occasion that Dr. Hayden made an unsuccessful attempt to scale to the top of the highest snowy pinnacle. He has climbed every pinnacle but that of the Tetons, and has come to the conclusion that the highest rising to an elevation of 13,000 feet.

This is the occasion that Dr. Hayden made an unsuccessful attempt to scale to the top of the highest snowy pinnacle. He has climbed every pinnacle but that of the Tetons, and has come to the conclusion that the highest rising to an elevation of 13,000 feet.

A GREAT CATCH.

The general excitement of the globe. The waters of the Wind River have abundant supplies from the Tetonsmens, Green River, the Gulch of Snakes, Trout are the staple of Green River, flowing through the canons of Colorado, Utah, and Arizona, and eventually to that of the Colorado River into the Gulf of California. Trout are the staple across the Snake River, which after a winding course through lower falls of sufficient magnitude arising together receive the Columbia River and find egress to the Pacific Ocean. The camp, then, is on the best water-shed of the continent, which supplies to vast quantities of clear water to millions of the people, and is now the pleasant to the fashionable resort of enthusiast tourists.

THE PRESIDENT'S CAMP IN DETAIL.

The President has not been here to fish and hunt. He has only 30 days' vacation on the mountain of the summit about him. The excitement of position does not admit a chance on the intense solicitude of Secretary Lincoln's anxiety abroad.

Col. Mike Sheridan is blissfully chartered as the telegraphic and courier news that the papers are endeavoring to fix reports to the Associated Press as "Dispatches."

CHARMING AS A DELIGHTFUL HOSTESS.

President ARTHUR, in conversation with Gen. Sheridan, said, "Is there not a paper in Chicago known as the Inter-Ocean?"

"Yes, sir," replied the General.

"Then to what place should I go to find the Editor of the Inter-Ocean?"

"Why, to the Windermere cottage of the Hon. Charles Lake, sir," replied the General, who appreciates his opportunity to offer compliments to the office concerning one person who thinks his duty of subscription is not ending a week ahead."

THE OFFICIAL REPORT.

The President's carriage at the gate.

Camp Vest on Green Creek, via Fort Washakie, Wyo. T., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The first to the camp having been broken at Salt Lake Park this morning at [illegible] has been successful. The President and all the members of the party are in excellent health and spirits. The country traversed since leaving Camp Sutton, with numerous halts for alternate rounds and short distances, which made excursions lasting for the ambulance. But no record has been set for in most enjoyable way toward in the making of an every successful camping trip. Many of the party are clearly of positive that would as well as the Most as during the entire Governor, the without Wind River and the Great Mountains, this fact appreciated points, are to state, and afford continuous to the tone of interest who are pressing their way across the dry and heated desert below.

A DELIGHTFUL CAMP.

This makes an Ideal Camp, however, in a very delightful one, on pleasant ground, with plenty of the essential requirements of good camping where good water and grass, in the moment of us in the Cool Green River Valley, and of the noble Wind River Mountains, the Continental Divide pinnacles.

Trout abound here in quantities of 5 and 6 pounds, as appreciable to the needs of the table, and the Commissary Department of the Expedition, Lieut. Carter, U.S.A., in charge, has been successful in securing a number of specimens of the finny tribe of the Rocky Mountains, the weight of which, as stated by Lieut. Carter, who is an expert fisherman, will astonish the natives of Chicago. Lieut. THE NEW NORTHWEST.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Today's crop reports show a further improvement in the condition of the growing grain. Into the north of Fergus Falls on the Manitoba and on Lakes and Western on the Northern Pacific. Assistant General Passenger Agent Clark, who returned yesterday from Manitoba, reports the crops in an excellent condition and says the yield this year will be fully as great if not greater than last year, the increased acreage making up for any deficiencies. The general complaint along the line is about an almost total failure of potatoes. This is confirmed in the neighborhood of Winnipeg, where farmers are digging only enough for their own use. This is unfortunate in the extreme, as the potato crop is the principal source of revenue to the farmers in the early fall. Harvesting will begin generally in the vicinity of Winnipeg next week. Reports from the Northern Pacific country are also encouraging. Harvesting will begin in the Red River Valley about the 20th inst. DEMOCRATIC PRESIDENTIAL PIGEON.

Those who are familiar with the political affairs of the United States may safely declare, on giving a very close thought to the subject that the Democratic party is beginning its work to great material for Presidential candidates. The conspicuous men of that party may be counted on the fingers of the two hands; the men of recognized ability and wide fame are available men for a Presidential race is not to be discovered. To characterize this remark [illegible] are supposed from time to time to be Democratic candidates would be considered with [illegible] and [illegible] are to be considered as [illegible] and [illegible] are to be considered as [illegible] and [illegible] are to be considered as Full Satisfactory Accounts of One of the Principal Disasters of Modern Times.

The Surface of the Earth Rolled Like a Pit of Thick Rock.

A Cloud of Sulphurous Dust Arose That Suffocated Many Who Had Escaped.

Supreme Political Situation Awaiting the Result of 1,000 Corpses—The Town Not Existing To-Night.

[Special Cable to The New York Times, Aug. 11.—While the first news which reached this nation from Ischia, a vast tract of country in the Mediterranean, was of a most exaggerated character, and while it was universally believed that the whole island had been overwhelmed, the actual truth proves bad enough. The disaster is confined to the town of Casamicciola, which is situated on the northern coast of the island, and which contains about 4,000 inhabitants. The shock was felt throughout the whole island, but in no other place with such disastrous effect. The town of Casamicciola is built on the slope of a mountain, and is a favorite resort of invalids, who go there to drink the waters of the hot springs which abound in the neighborhood. The town is divided into two parts, the upper and lower. The upper part is built on the very edge of the mountain, and the lower part on the sea shore. The earthquake was felt at 9 o'clock on Thursday evening, July 28, and was followed by a succession of shocks, which continued at intervals during the night. At 5 o'clock on the following morning a violent convulsion of nature took place, which completely overthrew the upper part of the town, and buried the greater portion of the inhabitants in the ruins. The lower part of the town was also greatly damaged, and many persons were killed by falling houses. The scene which presented itself to the survivors when they emerged from their houses is described as terrible in the extreme. The whole surface of the earth appeared to be rolling like a pit of thick rock, and the air was filled with a dense cloud of dust, which suffocated many who had escaped the falling ruins. The appearance of the island was changed, and the whole of the coast line was altered. A dense cloud of dust, mingled with sulphurous vapor, hung over the island, and enveloped in its suffocating folds the fugitives who were flying from the ruins. To add to the horrors of the disaster, heavy thunderstorms occurred in the evening, which deluged the ruins with rain, and added to the misery of the survivors. Up to the present time [illegible] dead bodies have been found, and it is supposed that 1,000 persons have perished. The Royal family of Italy, who were at the time on a visit to the island, have left for Naples. The Queen has been indefatigable in her attentions to the wounded, and has herself assisted in the removal of the dead bodies. The King has also been unremitting in his exertions to relieve the distress which prevails. The Queen has also been unremitting in her attentions to the wounded. The Prince of Piedmont has also been indefatigable
